

the ATKINS CENTER FOR ETHICS

The Atkins Center for Ethics at Carlow University is committed to bringing ethical reflection to bear on important social issues through teaching, community engagement, and scholarship. Furthermore, it is designed to raise awareness about the importance, complexity, and consequences of incorporating ethics in all that we do throughout our lives and careers.

The Atkins Center provides:

- + Educational programming for both the campus community and the public.
- + Guest speakers on contemporary ethical debates.
- + Tools for students to develop into ethical leaders.
- + Resources for educators and researchers.
- + Ethical consultations for students, academics, businesses, and nonprofits.

The Atkins Center was founded with a generous endowment by Michele Atkins, a Carlow alum (1982) and former chair of the Carlow University board of trustees, and her husband Pat Atkins. In their words, "Pat and I are committed to raising the level of awareness of ethical issues for this region and for the country. The examination of issues involving what is right, fair, just, legal and moral is becoming increasingly critical to the future of our world."
